Organizers have contracted TeleNet Media to provide live streaming of the world renowned Cleveland International Piano Competition in an eight day broadcast that provided worldwide access to this event.

Once reserved for the Fortune 500, technology has evolved allowing virtually any organization to broadcast and brand their live event to audiences around the world and the Cleveland International Piano Competition is no exception. Needing a reliable provider, the Cleveland International Piano Competition turned to industry professionals TeleNet Media to provide live satellite streaming to provide full coverage of this eight day event.

TeleNet Media owner Josh Winstead commented "This was an important event. There were thousands of viewers tuning in from all around the globe over eight consecutive days and all of them are using different computers and different operating systems. I'm grateful to the Cleveland International Piano Competition for trusting us to bring our technological expertise to their worldwide audience. This was an incredible broadcast."

From around the world, musicians, family, and friends tuned in online to follow the intense competition. With over 12,600 viewers and 305,000 minutes viewed, this was no small audience. Viewers came from all over the world, including Germany, Korea, Poland, Argentina, Mexico, Ukraine, Venezuela, United Kingdom, Hong Kong, China, Canada, Israel, South Africa, Bulgaria, Spain, Serbia, France, Austria, Italy, Netherlands, Taiwan, Romania, Ecuador, Belgium, Slovakia, Macao, Singapore, Croatia, Switzerland, Indonesia, Greece, Costa Rica, India, Norway, and of course, the United States.

Della Homenik, Director of Communications with the Cleveland Piano Competition stated "TeleNet provided the Competition with a reliable, high quality, and cost effective webcast. The company's compact equipment was easy to work with at our venue, the staff was professional and committed to providing a quality broadcast, and our viewers were very enthusiastic. All in all, TeleNet exceeded our expectations."

Josh Winstead reported that this broadcast was one of TeleNet Media's most successful events, "...delivering the highest quality video with clear audio that delivered the concert hall experience to thousands of viewers right in their living rooms. It was both a sight and sound to behold."

TeleNet Media (TeleNetMedia.net) provides live event filming and broadcasting of virtually any event using satellite technology and video compression technology providing viewer access to internet users worldwide.
